

Are you ready to REACH?

Learn how to prepare your company for the new EU policy on changes related to chemical imports

March 1, 2007

at the Marriott Courtyard in Philadelphia, PA

On December 13, the European Parliament approved a new system for regulating the import, manufacture, marketing and use of chemicals. The new chemicals policy will come into force June 1, 2007 and will affect a broad spectrum of US companies across industry sectors such as pharmaceutical, industrial chemicals, cosmetics, cleaning products, etc.

The Registration, Evaluation and Authorization of Chemicals (REACH) system will require some 30,000 chemicals currently on the market to be registered with a new European Chemicals Agency (ECHA) over a period of 11 years. The use of an estimated 1,600 substances of "very high concern" will be subject to authorization by the ECHA. The registration process will help regulatory authorities "fill information gaps on the hazards of substances and... identify appropriate risk management measures to ensure their safe use," according to a statement issued by the commission.

As chemical manufacturing is the #1 export for both Pennsylvania and Delaware, the Philadelphia USEAC, the MidAtlantic District Export Council, and BDP International have teamed up to present the REACH Roadshow to local firms. This half-day conference will address the ins and outs of REACH and how it will affect you and your business. Through featured speakers, including Commercial Specialist Flavie Guerin of CS Brussels, Market Access & Compliance staff from the Europe office and EU compliance attorneys from Allen & Overy LLC, this conference will help prepare you to be ready for the process to be put in place.

Highlights of Conference Topics:

- REACH the Basics
- Preparing a 'Registration Dossier'
- Requirements for REACH
- Authorization for Exporting to the EU
- One-on-One Requested Meetings

Click here
for more information or to register

Are you ready to REACH?

Learn how to prepare your company for the new EU policy on changes related to chemical imports

March 1, 2007

at the Marriott Courtyard in Philadelphia, PA

On December 13, the European Parliament approved a new system for regulating the import, manufacture, marketing and use of chemicals. The new chemicals policy will come into force June 1, 2007 and will affect a broad spectrum of US companies across industry sectors such as pharmaceutical, industrial chemicals, cosmetics, cleaning products, etc.

Click here

for more information or to register

The Registration, Evaluation and Authorization of Chemicals (REACH) system will require some 30,000 chemicals currently on the market to be registered with a new European Chemicals Agency (ECHA) over a period of 11 years. The use of an estimated 1,600 substances of "very high concern" will be subject to authorization by the ECHA. The registration process will help regulatory authorities "fill information gaps on the hazards of substances and... identify appropriate risk management measures to ensure their safe use," according to a statement issued by the commission.

As chemical manufacturing is the #1 export for both Pennsylvania and Delaware, the Philadelphia USEAC, the MidAtlantic District Export Council, and BDP International have teamed up to present the REACH Roadshow to local firms. This half-day conference will address the ins and outs of REACH and how it will affect you and your business. Through featured speakers, including Commercial Specialist Flavie Guerin of CS Brussels, Market Access & Compliance staff from the Europe office and EU compliance attorneys from Allen & Overy LLC, this conference will help prepare you to be ready for the process to be put in place.

Highlights of Conference Topics:

- REACH the Basics
- Preparing a 'Registration Dossier'
- Requirements for REACH
- Authorization for Exporting to the EU
- One-on-One Requested Meetings